Personal Statement

I'm an enthusiastic computer science student graduating in July of 2020. I have already had a year of experience as a software developer creating software solutions for different clients and loved it. I am rather passionate about my work and like to take pride in it.

In my own time I like to find project ideas, whether games or software, which I can then plan and, if given time to, attempt the ideas. I've taken part in numerous Game Jams, winning different awards for each (a Game Jam is a competition, usually done in 24 to 48 hours, in which a game must be designed and created based on a single theme).

Interests

Lately I've been interested in working on making a passive form of income on the side to help invest in my future. I've been looking at doing this with print on demand using Shopify or other companies like Teespring or Redbubble.

Along other lines I'm also interested in making games still and have started looking into hyper casual mobile games. This genre tends to be the most played games as they can often become addictive. Making games like this I could start to earn a passive income this way as well as making something I too would enjoy.
